

Defer Online Publication of Dissertation (Consent form)

To: Dean of the Graduate School of International Cooperation Studies

I hereby confirm that I have read the explanation below and agreed with it.

Please note that GSICS will treat your application regarding deferment of online publication of dissertation as follows.

Please read once again the "Notice to Doctoral candidates"(approved by Kobe University Institute for Promotion of Higher Education on 6th June 2013) attached to this document.

According to the Kobe University Regulations, from April 2013, all Doctoral conferees must make the entire text of their dissertations publicly available online within one year from the date of conferment. The new rule has designated the Kobe University Repository Kernel as its preferred online publication medium. The request for deferment of online publication of your dissertation will be admitted only when conditions mentioned in the above "Notice" are met.

↓ Please read each item below and check to confirm.

1 . Extension of deferment of online publication of dissertation

If you submitted "Application to Defer Online Publication of Dissertation (Form 1)" and request the extension of the deferment period, it is your responsibility to notify explicitly such intention to extend the deferment to the GSICS Academic Affairs Office 3 months before the expiration of the original deferment period. This notification must be made either by telephone call or by e-mail. In the latter case, you must obtain a confirmation of receipt from the GSICS office. Unless you obtain this receipt, the application to extend the deferment has not yet been received by the GSICS office.

2 .After the expiration of deferment

The GSICS Academic Affairs Office will not inform you before the expiration of the period of deferment. If the GSICS office does not receive the extension request, after the expiration of the initial period of deferment or the extended period, the entire text of the dissertation shall be made public online through Kobe University Online Repository Kernel.
